Cacao Resorts in Palawan, Phillipines

Move over Belize, Fiji, and Tahiti – there’s a new luxury island resort in the race for vacation destination du jour. Chauffeurs, private chefs, spa treatments...all the five-star favorites offered at the world’s most exclusive resorts can also be found at the new Cacao Resorts. Built on a 124-acre private island on the Palawan Biosphere Reserve in the Philippines, the resorts are surrounded by calming beaches and luscious rainforests. To keep things beautiful, everything runs on 100% renewable energy and 100% of the net operating profits goes back to local environmental and social programs. Everything is also supposedly reasonably priced. Could this be the dawn of the budget butlers and affordable affluence? Guess we’ll find out closer to the official opening date (which we’re told will be sometime next year).
