Meadow Creek Dairy

In a fit of New Year's resolutions, we tried giving up dairy (yes, we read Skinny Bitch). But our resolve didn't stand a chance against the pleasures of a perfect Meadow Creek Dairy Grayson, Appalachian, or Mountaineer. Made in the mountains of Southwest Virginia using unpasteurized milk from happy, hormone-free, antibiotic-free, grass-fed cows, the family-run farm's award-winning cheeses are made within two hours of milking to ensure freshness and then aged to perfection for a minimum of 60 days. Now that is what we call serious dedication – very much unlike, as history will predict, what we have for our resolutions.
