

 Editor Bree Shirvell: The Forgotten Hydrangea: A Look At A Little-Known Hydrangea That Is Perfect For Connecticut Gardens. - <http://ow.ly/5ccmZ> — Tweeted 1 hour ago

 Like 567

 Get the Patch Newsletter

Home

News

Events

Places

Marketplace

Q&A

Volunteer

Elections 2011

Search

Business

Local Farming In Stonington And Connecticut

"We Are What We Eat"

By Bree Shirvell | Email the author | April 21, 2011

 Recommend  10 recommendations. Sign Up to see what your friends recommend.

 Comments

Nestled along Al Harvey Road in Stonington is a farm that doubles as an educational program. Full of fresh food, fun and learning, Stonington's sustainable Terra Firma Farm is one of a number of farms in Connecticut producing local food in a sustainable way.

On Friday, April 22, the U.S will celebrate the 41st Earth Day—a day designed to raise our awareness of the environment that surrounds us. This is something that Terra Firma farmers Brianne Casadei and Ethan Grimes have been doing in Stonington for the past seven years.

They established the farm at a time when the local food movement was just beginning to grow. Since then the local food movement has taken off—the term locavore, established in 2005, has become common, farmers markets have grown 115 percent from 1999 to 2010 according to the Working Farms Alliance, and Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) programs, where people pay a certain amount for a weekly share of fresh produce, have grown from an estimated 10 farms in 1999 to 102 farms in 2007, the last year numbers are available for from the USDA.

But while the local farm movement has been growing, farmland has disappeared.

Founded in 2002, Connecticut Farmland Trust is a non-profit organization in Connecticut that works to raise awareness about local farms and also to protect farmland.

According to Henry Talmage, former Executive Director of Connecticut Farmland Trust, who was recently named Executive Director of the Connecticut Farm Bureau, Connecticut loses between 7,000 and 9,000 acres of farmland each year and the trend is towards losing significant amounts of land.

"A great deal is unprotected. Farms go out of business some farms are bought by other farms and consolidated," Talmage said.

Still, in the past five years, Talmage said more people have become aware of the importance of saving farmland and have celebrated the land from the perspective of the food.

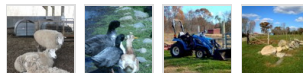

"Connecticut agriculture has a lot of diversity. We have specialty cheese farms, dairies, whole bunch of produce, every farm is different," Talmage said.

Terra Firma is part of that diversity. The Stonington farm isn't your typical working farm or CSA program though. It adds educational activities, such as this week's April Vacation Week, where children can attend either the entire week or a day program, such as today's All about Rabbits & Bunnies where campers visit the new bunnies and dogs and learn about the rabbits and bunnies.

View full size

PHOTOS (4)

Add your photos & videos

 Share

 Print

 Tweet

 Start Following

 Email

 Submit a tip

 Tell Your Neighbors About Patch

Don't Run Out of Money in Retirement

If you have a $500,000 portfolio, download the guide by Forbes columnist Ken Fisher's firm. Even if you're not sure how to start rebuilding your portfolio or who to turn to for help, this must-read guide includes research and analysis you can use right now. Don't miss it!

Click Here to Download Your Guide!

FISHER INVESTMENTS™

We're here to make you smile
compassionate • friendly • comfortable setting

Located in a historic home with a bright open atmosphere
Visit Dr. Sally M. Vail and Dr. Linda J. Robson
for all your dental needs.

IN THIS ARTICLE

Terra Firma Farm
330 Al Harvey Rd, Stonington,
CT

SEE MORE ON PATCH

Local Leaders Want The World To Know 'Stonington Is Open For Business'

Going Local With Stonington Vineyards

Impending Legislation Could Harm Stonington's Lobster Industry

Business Owner And Architect Michael McKinley Builds A Life In Stonington

Footsteps Farm Owner Craig Floyd Is No Conventional Farmer

Mineral Make-Up • Handcrafted Soaps • Skin Care and more

MOST POPULAR ARTICLES

- Erin Skeens Is 2011 SHS Salutatorian
- Five Things to Know For Tuesday, June 7,

the new bunnies and does and learn about the rabbits and bunnies.

Casadei credits the combination of the working farm with its educational side for the success the farm saying she didn't think one would survive without the other in this area.

The idea to combine a farm with educational programs came in part from how much she learned working on a farm while she was in college.

"I learned so much, I wanted to give that opportunity to others," Casadei said.

Casadei said she hopes the farm and others like it offer their communities the opportunity to learn about how farms raise animals and to connect with the people who grow their food.

"We are what we eat," Casadei said, adding it seems like everyone is eating bad things.

In addition to their educational programs the farm was recently Animal Welfare Approved making it one of one of only six in the state. And it is one of three in southeastern Connecticut. Cedar Meadow Farm in Ledyard and JW Beef in Stonington are the other two.

Animal Welfare Approved, founded in 2006, audits and certifies family farms that raise and slaughter and produce animal products in humane ways. According to their website Animal Welfare Approved requires animals to be raised on pasture or range, prohibiting dual production, awarding approval only to family farmers, charging no fees to participating farms, and incorporating standards for high welfare of farming. In 2008 the first farm in Connecticut, Stuart Family, became Animal Welfare Approved.

"We don't hide what happens to the animals," Casadei said of letting the children know what happens on the farm. "We say we hope they have the best possible life with the exception of 1 bad hour."

Interested in a follow-up to this article?

Keep me posted!

Leave a comment

Submit >

Advertise

Advertise on Patch and reach potential customers in your backyard and beyond. Click here for more information.

Learn more >

Volunteer

If you want to help local causes, or your cause needs local help, your next click should be right here.

Learn more >

Contribute

- Send us news tips
- Put an event on the calendar
- Announce something to everyone

Patch Info

- About Us
- Jobs
- Advertise
- Terms of Use
- Privacy Policy

Get in Touch

- Help
- Contact Us
- Patch Blog

Patch Initiatives

- PatchU
- Patch.org

Goodies

- Newsletters
- Widgets

2011

3. Stonington High School Prom Is A Night To Remember
4. Zombies Come To Mystic
5. Viewfinder: Iron Chef Competition And Auction At Saltwater Vineyards

Follow us:

Plant Patch on your site!
Get the Patch News Widget

Get Patched In

Stonington-Mystic news, events, and deals, delivered straight to you.

Sign Up

Close